Government allocates Sh3.9 billion for Junior Secondary classrooms

Cabinet Secretary for Education Ezekiel Machogu delivers a keynote address as he officially opened a three-day 63rd KNUT Annual Delegates Conference held at Moi International Sports Complex, Kasarani in Nairobi. The conference was themed: "The Teachers We Need for the Education we want; The Kenyan Imperative to Reverse Teacher shortage".

Education CS Ezekiel Machogu says, in addition to the government's allocation, another Sh9 billion from the World Bank would be secured for the construction of 9,000 classrooms

BY HAMDY BUTHUL (KNA)

The Government has earmarked Sh3.9 billion for the construction of an additional 15,021 classrooms for Junior Secondary Schools (JSS) by 2025 to accommodate the anticipated influx of first-grade nine learners.

Education Cabinet Secretary Ezekiel Machogu announced that, in addition to the government's allocation, an additional Sh9 billion from the World Bank would be secured for the construction of 9,000 classrooms. The National Government Constituency Development Fund (NGCDF) would also provide support to ensure the readiness of the classrooms by 2025.

Policyholders Compensation Fund now disburses Sh93m to claimants of collapsed insurance firms

BY ROBERT OJWANG'(KNA)

The Policyholders Compensation Fund (PCF) has provided financial relief to 778 policyholders of three collapsed insurance firms, disbursing a total of Sh93.18 million as of June 30, 2023.

The compensation includes Sh82.21 million distributed among 724 former clients of Resolution Insurance Company, which was placed under statutory management by the Insurance Regulatory Authority in April 2022 due to financial challenges.

Additionally, the PCF has compensated Sh9.02 million to 45 claimants of Concord Insurance, which collapsed in 2013, and another Sh9.02 million to nine policyholders of Standard Assurance, which collapsed in 2008.

The PCF is now urging policyholders with outstanding claims from collapsed insurers to submit claims within two years to qualify for compensation from the fund.

"We will traverse across all counties with a target of calling upon the public to come forward and lodge their claims with PCF for those members of the public who had claims with Resolution Insurance Company Limited -Under Statutory Management and Standard Assurance Company -Under Liquidation," she emphasized.

Ms Kavili made the remarks during the opening of a five-day sensitization campaign for various stakeholders held in Kisumu

County. “PCF was established in 2005 to provide compensation to claimants of an insurer that has been put under statutory management or whose license has been canceled. This also aims at increasing the general public’s confidence in the insurance sector,” Ms Kavili noted.

The fund, Ms Kavili revealed, has accumulated Sh19.1 billion in levies from insurance companies and policyholders to be utilized in compensating the affected clients in the event the insurance firm collapses.

Insurers and the policyholder are required to each contribute a 0.25 per cent levy on the premiums underwritten towards the fund. Currently, PCF awards a maximum compensation of up to Sh250,000 per claim of general insurance.

However, creditors with higher value claims are expected to wait until the company’s property and assets are auctioned through the liquidation process to be paid their dues. Ms Kavili further noted that IRA has also issued a green light for PCF to initiate the processing and effect compensation in the coming year to the policyholders of United Insurance and Blue Shield Insurance – both under statutory management.

Other insurance companies that have shut down operations in the last two decades include Access Insurance Company, Kenya National Insurance, Stallion Insurance Company Ltd, Liberty Insurance and Lake Star Insurance Company.

The rising trend of business failure in the insurance industry has been attributed to insurance fraud, underpricing of insurance products, poor corporate governance practices, poor investment, among other reasons.

ernment’s commitment to providing the necessary infrastructure to create conducive environments for effective teaching and learning.

The CS praised KNUT delegates for championing teachers’ welfare, acknowledging the positive impact on learners’ performance in schools. He assured the union of the government’s ongoing collaboration to enhance both teacher welfare and the quality of education in schools.

Machogu highlighted the crucial role of teachers in the successful implementation of the Competency-Based Curriculum (CBC) and other recommendations of the Presidential Working Party on Education Reform.

He also challenged school administrators to actively support the government’s initiative to combat climate change, setting a target of planting 15 billion trees by 2032. Schools were identified as focal points for tree planting and seedling propagation.

KNUT Secretary General Collins Oyuu commended the government for recruiting over 56,000 teachers within a year. He urged the Ministry of Education to negotiate with the Teachers Service Commission (TSC) for intern teachers to be placed under permanent and pensionable terms.

Oyuu emphasized the need for revising upward the capitation for schools due to the increased cost of living and called for affirmative action in marginalized communities to ensure uniform education management across the country, particularly in arid and semi-arid areas where teachers tend to shy away.

The pioneer group of the Competency-Based Curriculum (CBC) joined Junior Secondary School (JSS) on January 30, 2023, after completing the first level of the new education system. Junior Secondary Education is 3 years curriculum, (ages 13-16) Grades 7-9. Students are awarded the Basic Education Certificate (BEC) on completion of Grade 9.

The Government introduced CBC in 2017 to replace the previous 8-4-4 system that was introduced in 1985 by former President Daniel Arap Moi.

Mumias Sugar Company roars back to life, begins operations

BY GEORGE KAIGA AND MOSES WEKESA (KNA)

The revival of Mumias Sugar Company is set to benefit hundreds of cane farmers as the giant sugar miller reopens its doors after several years of closure due to insolvency and management issues.

Operations are gearing up, with the company welcoming cane deliveries from farmers.

Within two weeks, Mumias Sugar Company plans to release sugar to the market, subject to compliance tests by agencies such as the Kenya Bureau of Standards (KEBS).

The management has rehired 787 former employees, with additional staff expected to join the sugar packing area.

The company vows to pay farmers for cane supplies weekly, promising a swift turnaround.

Manager in charge of Operations, Mr. Stephen Kihumba, emphasized that the miller is committed to supporting farmers and urged them to plant mature sugarcane for optimal results.

The company has set the sugarcane price at Sh6,050 per tonne, influencing adjustments by other millers for the benefit of farmers.

In two weeks' time, the company will start releasing sugar to the market with the Kenya Bureau of Standards (KEBS), among other agencies set to conduct compliance tests after the management already recalled 787 former employees while more staff are expected to report back in the sugar packing area.

Mr. Kihumba revealed that more former employees will be engaged on a need basis, with more opportunities expected to open in the cogen and ethanol plant.

To farmers, Kihumba promised that the miller will be paying them for supplying cane every week, after seven days without any delays, promising Kenyans that the miller is a company to watch, with farmers expected to reap from their investment in sugarcane farming.

The company has set the price for a tonne of sugarcane at Sh6,050 which has seen other millers adjust their prices for the benefit of farmers.

The Agricultural and Food Authority (AFA) has directed the company to start crushing 2,500 tons of sugarcane per day for a period of two months up to the end of January.

AFA will then advise whether to increase the crushing capacity or to continue with the current rate after a survey to determine the amount of sugarcane in the region.

According to Kihumba, Mumias Sugar Company has a capacity to crush 8,400 tons of sugarcane per day which will be realized once the miller becomes fully operational.

Mumias Sugar has been clustered to operate in the Lower Kakamega region together with Kibos Sugar Company and Olepito.

"We believe we can give more support to our farmers because we are sure that 2,000 hectares this year so that by next year I will be able to cover it all. But what I can say is that currently we have sufficient seed cane from the 1,400 hectares of nucleus to be able to plant the remaining part of the nuclear estate," he added.

"Cane development is key for this company to be sustained, we need to get back farmers on board, farmers who had already given up, who had been frustrated, we want to tell them it is time they go back to their farms; they will earn better, they will be paid promptly and they will get the sufficient support that they may so require," he noted.

The company will also increase the freight in terms of tractors to help in transporting sugarcane as more farmers are signing up with the miller.

"I also take this opportunity to thank the government, the President, the county governor and the leadership for the support they have given us, for standing with us and even prevailing upon many of the legal masters that have been there," he added.

the cane we receive is coming from within our region, there is no transfer of cane to other regions," he added.

He said they have planted sugarcane on 1,400 hectares of the 3,400 hectares' nucleus land owned by the company.

Nakuru water firm to upgrade infrastructure, curb losses

BY JANE NGUGI AND DENNIS RASTO(KNA)

The revenue performance of Nakuru Rural Water and Sanitation Company (NARUWASCO) has received a significant boost following plans to enhance its technical capacity and reduce losses associated with poor piping.

This development comes as the Water Service Provider (WSP) revealed that it is losing over 40 per cent of the water it generates due to old and dilapidated infrastructure.

NARUWASCO Managing Director, Mr. Reuben Korir, disclosed that the water service provider is actively mobilizing more resources both locally and internationally to undertake new water projects and improve existing dilapidated water and sewerage infrastructure.

Mr. Korir emphasized that clean water provision remains a constitutional right. NARUWASCO is collaborating with the US Agency for International Development (USAID) and other stakeholders to provide Nakuru residents with access to clean and sufficient water for domestic use.

The Managing Director revealed their engagement in a five-year program with Aquaya supported by USAID, which aims to provide more technical support in water quality. The focus will be on monitoring and improving the quality of water systems in rural areas.

“We aspire to achieve 100 per cent clean water connectivity and brainstorm on the aspect of affordability. We are doing all we can to ensure resources for expanding and rehabilitating the infrastructure are available,” he said.

able,” he said.

He mentioned that the upgrade of infrastructure will reduce water loss due to broken pipes from the current 47 per cent to 20 percent.

“Due to dilapidated infrastructure, we are currently losing almost half of the water we produce, which would have otherwise been available for an increasing number of consumers,” he said.

Speaking in Nakuru, Mr. Korir indicated that NARUWASCO is also developing strategic policies to significantly reduce water loss emanating from dripping pipes. He stressed that the firm is implementing strategies that prioritize the speed and quality of repairs once a leak has been detected.

“We are working on active leakage control mechanisms, assets, and pressure management in both short-term and long-term measures that are key,” Mr. Korir said.

Indicating that NARUWASCO had managed to cut down the loss of water from 70 per cent to the current 20 per cent, the managing director however regretted that the loss of water is undermining the progressive realization of the right to water as enshrined in the Constitution.

According to the Water and Sanitation Providers Association (WASPA), at least 45 per cent of the water produced by water companies is lost through theft, leakages, and wastages costing the country Sh112 billion annually leading to losses that have left the companies staring at insolvency.

KENTTEC, Turkana in new partnership to fight tsetse flies and trypanosomiasis

BY PETER GITONGA (KNA)

The Kenya Tsetse and Trypanosomiasis Eradication Council (KENTTEC), in partnership with the County Government of Turkana, has launched an initiative to control tsetse flies and trypanosomiasis as a proactive measure.

Led by Isaiah Ndaburu Kiteto, the Director for Surveillance and Control at KENTTEC, and in collaboration with the County Directorate of Veterinary Services, the intervention comes in response to complaints from residents of Turkana West and Loima sub-counties who have been significantly affected.

The team is currently engaged in screening livestock for trypanosomiasis/Nagana and providing treatment for positive cases identified during the screening. Additionally, traps are being deployed to determine the presence or absence of tsetse flies in Lokirama, Urum, Oropoi, and Natiira, aligning with the Council's mandate to control tsetse and trypanosomiasis in livestock.

Livestock spraying is the primary control method employed during this initiative, with supplies purchased by the County Government of Turkana and some provided by KENT-

Council of Governors unveils pro-business agenda to attract investments in counties

BY JANE NGUGI(KNA)

The Council of Governors (COG) is prioritizing policies that facilitate license acquisition, enact laws and regulations promoting business growth, and foster a supportive culture among county staff across all 47 devolved units.

COG has also expressed its commitment to supporting the private sector through business and economic development programs, aiming to help businesses thrive and nurture new ones.

The Chairperson of the CoG Trade, Industry, Manufacturing, and Enterprise Development Committee, Governor Ms. Susan Kihika, indicated that such programs include incentives like lower taxes or rebates and refunds for certain costs of building factories, provision of land for expansion at a subsidized cost to the private sector, and facilitation of access to low-cost loans, among others.

In effect, these measures would attract entrepreneurs and promote the flow of capital to counties, ultimately leading to job creation. Kihika spoke during a consultative meeting held in Naivasha aimed at fostering collaboration between the National Government, the Ministry of Investment, Trade, and Industry, and the 47 County Governments in promoting the fast growth of businesses.

Special emphasis is on the progress made in supporting Micro, Small, and Medium Enterprises (MSMEs), with initiatives ranging from funds to tax incentives, policy reforms, and the automation of services, financial inclusion, and infrastructure development. The CoG focuses on promoting industry clusters to capitalize on marketing services' critical mass, attract specialized finance, and provide cheaper access to technology and skilled labor.

Ms Kihika suggested that the county governments should support businesses in connecting to markets, promoting innovation and technology use for competitiveness and job creation in the private sector.

"We are collectively building an environment that nurtures our local businesses and propels our counties forward. The private sector should be encouraged to invest in adding value to raw materials and selling the processed goods which have greater returns compared to raw materials in themselves.

"Counties should focus on infrastructure development, including road and rail networks, to enable faster and easier transportation of raw materials and finished products," the Governor stated.

Kihika emphasized the need for county governments to collaborate and lobby for national support to ensure fair competition for local products.

County governments must focus on fostering a thriving environment, emphasizing the importance of MSMEs for income and job growth, and implementing innovative strategies to promote their development.

Women in ASAL areas use climate-smart farming to fight poverty

BY MUTURI MWANGI (KNA)

Over 3,658 women from three Arid and Semi-Arid counties—Kitui, West Pokot, and Laikipia are thriving through modern farming technologies for sustainable livelihoods.

During a workshop on economic empowerment through climate-smart agriculture technology in Nanyuki, UN Women Kenya Representative Ms. Annah Mutabati highlighted the challenges faced by women in these areas, including poverty resulting from cultural values and illiteracy that limit opportunities for land ownership and education.

Collaborating with partners like the Korean government and the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), a project supported by the Korean International Cooperation Agency (KOICA) aims to uplift women in these ASAL counties through a $4.4 million investment in climate-smart farming.

The KOICA Kenya Director Janghee Im said women are presently economically empowered as compared to previous years.

"There are many success stories of poultry farming after they lose their livestock due to drought. They are now able to survive with climate-smart agriculture," IM said.

He noted women had grappled with poverty but with climate smart farming, they are practicing poultry farming, kitchen gardening, among others.

West Pokot County Executive Committee Member (CECM) in charge of Agriculture Wilfred Longronyang said women are also involved in table banking to supplement their income.

His Kitui counterpart Dr. Stephen Kimwele said that women groups using climate farming technologies had increased yields and at the same noted there was a need to empower women for economic growth.

Kenyan diaspora express confidence in improved investment environment

BY MICHAEL OMONDI (KNA)

Kenyan expatriates are optimistic that the government will enhance the investment climate in the country, allowing for greater leveraging of diaspora remittances.

This optimism stems from the government's commitment to establish structures that facilitate easier investment by Kenyans abroad, aimed at attracting more investments from the diaspora community.

During the 10th Annual Kenya Diaspora Homecoming Convention in Nairobi, Roslyn Njogu, Principal Secretary of the State Department for Diaspora Affairs, highlighted the Kenya Kwanza administration's intensified efforts to create a more favorable investment environment for Kenyans in the diaspora. Njogu encouraged Kenyans abroad to explore new business opportunities and consider technology transfer as a way to introduce innovative practices from their host countries to Kenya.

Acknowledging concerns raised by Kenyans abroad about the high cost of remitting money back to the country, Njogu assured that the government would engage with stakeholders in the diaspora money transfer sector to address the issue and make the cost more manageable.

"The concern we have

noted from the diaspora is the high cost of sending money back home. We want more Kenyans abroad to keep sending money back home so that we develop our economy," Njogu emphasized.

According to the Central Bank of Kenya (CBK) Diaspora Remittances Surveys, inflows to the country, the largest economy in the region, have increased tenfold over the past decade, reaching a record $4.027 billion (KSh559.57 billion) in 2022.

The Ministry of Foreign and Diaspora Affairs is currently in the process of establishing systems to help Kenyans in the diaspora secure jobs that align with their qualifications.

Speaking at the Conference, the Kenya Diaspora Alliance Chairperson Dr Shem Ochuodho made a plea to the government to focus on improving the welfare of Kenyans abroad to enable them invest heavily back at home.

"Kenyans in the diaspora are ready to invest their money back home. There needs to be focus on improving the investment environment to attract them," said Dr Ochuodho.

He nevertheless exuded confidence that the steps laid down by the government will improve remittance in the country.

"I am confident that the steps being undertaken by the government to improve the welfare of Kenyans living abroad will bear fruits and see the doubling of remittances," expressed the Chairperson.

Meanwhile, the United States Ambassador to Kenya Meg Whitman lauded the Kenya Diaspora Alliance for organising the conference and encouraged Kenyans abroad to invest back in the country.

Gov't embraces dual training model in TVETs in partnership with GIZ

BY WANGARI NDIRANGU(KNA)

The Government, in collaboration with the German Development Organization GIZ, is implementing a dual training model in 67 Technical and Vocational Education and Training (TVET) institutions across the country.

A key feature of the new TVET curriculum is the dual training approach, where trainees undergo at least 50% industrial training and 50% classroom instruction. The pilot phase of the model has shown success, with a high percentage of trainees placed in industries being absorbed into the workforce.

This initiative aligns with the fully implemented Competency-Based Education and Training (CBET) curriculum since September 2023, promoting learner-centered training.

Dr. Esther Thaara Muoria, the Principal Secretary for the State Department for Technical, Vocational Education and Training, emphasized the benefits of CBET, encouraging active engagement and ownership of the learning journey, fostering critical thinking and problem-solving skills demanded in today's job market.

The PS noted that for effective implementation of CBET curriculum, the State Department for TVET in partnership with the Kenya School of TVET and other development partners has completed the re-tooling of TVET trainers drawn from the initial eleven national polytechnics on CBET delivery and is currently retooling the 13 institutions that were recently elevated to national polytechnic status.

Once the re-tooling of all TVET institution's trainers on CBET pedagogy delivery is completed, the PS added that the trainers will be up skilled in use of the contemporary equipment provided in the institutions in the recent years.

"The Government shall continue to support technical institutions through development of essential infrastructure as well as enhancing manpower development and deployment to sustain the accessibility and accord each Kenyan an opportunity to access technical training," she said.

Dr. Muoria, who witnessed the graduation of 2,001 students of various genres said the government has taken cognizant of a need to establish an internationally competitive workforce and a dire need to produce graduates who are fully skilled and ready to venture directly in employment and entrepreneurship after graduating.

"The importance of TVET and its contribution towards sustainable development, realization of Education for All (EFA) Goals, promotion of lifelong learning and addressing local and global knowledge and skills gap has been continuously underscored by the Kenya Kwanza Government," she added.

The PS further said the State Department for TVET

Principal Secretary State Department for Technical, Vocational Education and Training, (SD-TVET) Dr. Esther Thaara Muoria at the Kiambu National Polytechnic graduation ceremony.

in partnership with the Ministry of ICT and the Digital Economy, TVETA and Konza Techno polis, has been distributing digital labs to TVET institutions and more than 23,000 youths have undergone training on digital skills and online jobs in our various TVET institutions and are able to make good earnings from this initiative.

Dr. Muoria congratulated the Kiambu National Polytechnic management for establishing an endowment fund which up to now is operating at Sh7.5 million.

Regional Commissioner sounds alarm on stalled Government projects

BY JACOB SONGOK (KNA)

It has now emerged that 80 percent of all on-going national government projects in the North Eastern region have stalled, partly because the contractors lack the capacity to undertake them. In a report presented by the Regional Commissioner, Mr. John Otieno, to the National Development and Implementation Committee (NDIC) in October, some ten projects in the region are yet to be completed, requiring urgent interventions before they become 'white elephants.'

Speaking as the chairperson of the Regional Implementation Co-ordination and Monitoring Committee (RICMC), Otieno noted that the problem has been further compounded by the failure or deliberate lack of supervision by government engineers and officials of departments responsible for the projects.

"Some government officials tasked with monitoring the projects have failed in their duties, and the law will soon catch up with those colluding with contractors to defraud the government," Otieno stated.

"The national government is implementing several projects across the region aimed at impacting the socio-economic status of area residents. When the projects stall midway, the citizens are not getting value for the money invested in the projects," Otieno added. In his brief to RICMC, the Government Delivery Service Senior Director Mr. Mahat Shalle said some government officials entrusted with supervising the projects could be 'colluding with the contractors' to defraud the government.

Mr. Shalle who is the secretary to the committee and in charge of Eastern and North Eastern region counties said some of the projects dates back to 2015 and to date remain incomplete.

PS underscores need for human resource development

BY JOYCE MUTETE

The Principal Secretary for the State Department for Petroleum Mr. Mohamed Liban is urging parastatals and Semi Autonomous Government Agencies (SAGAS) under the State Department to embrace sporting activities as a tool of re-energising their human capital bases and exploit them as forums of bonding.

Liban said sports and games have always been an integral part of the culture of organisations and all government organisations should use them to bring their human resources together.

"Private-sector companies as well as public-sector undertakings have always actively indulged in sports competitions and out of office retreats as a tool of enhancing pro-active health practices and human resources bonding which manifest highly during this week long festivities in Kisumu", said the PS.

Liban who was speaking during the Kenya Pipeline Company (KPC) end of year festivities said the Government recognizes an efficient public service as a key cog in the wheel of effective public service delivery.

Egerton University seeks Nakuru County intervention to dispose asbestos waste

BY JANE NGUGI (KNA)

Egerton University has initiated talks with the Nakuru County Government to find a suitable site to dispose asbestos waste generated from the learning institution's old structures which are undergoing renovations.

The 84-year-old institution's management has indicated that the deliberations are in accordance with National Environmental Management Authority (NEMA) guidelines and that the public will be fully involved in establishment of the disposal site, citing the need to safeguard human health and the environment.

Vice-Chancellor Professor Isaac Kibwage said they are seeking the county's intervention in constructing a permanent disposal pit with concrete to seal the hazardous material and prevent it coming into contact with human beings, animals, water and the atmosphere.

Across the globe, 55 countries including the US, New Zealand, Australia and Egypt have banned the use of asbestos as a roofing material. Kenya banned its use in 2006.

Despite the ban on the use of asbestos in Kenya in 2006, and the associated increase in cancer cases, the material is still in use in water piping systems and roofs in many parts of the country.

Professor Kibwage made the appeal during discussions with Governor Susan Kihika over the proposed establishment of County Aggregation Industrial Park (CAIP) at the university's Ngongongi farm within Njoro Sub-County.

The proposed Egerton Industrial Park which is a collaborative project between the university, the County Government and the National Government will sit on 200 acres.

100 acres have been earmarked for establishment of the CAIP, while a further 100 acres have been set aside for putting up an Export Processing Zone (EPZ).

Professor Kibwage said there was a need to take workers renovating old buildings with piping and roofing asbestos materials through training on how to handle the waste and put precautions in place to ensure that members of the public are safe from disposed asbestos products.

At the meeting convened at the Governor's board room at the County headquarters in Nakuru Professor Kibwage said the university will ensure that it follows all NEMA regulations and specifications in disposing of the asbestos waste.

Legal Notice No.121 of the Environmental Management and Coordination (Waste Management) Regulations classifies waste containing asbestos as hazardous waste. In addition, the Legal Notice requires that hazardous waste be disposed of in a specified manner as approved by NEMA.

From the 1940s to 1970s, the construction industry preferred asbestos materials because they were cheaper, light and easy to install. Additionally, asbestos does not corrode under chemical exposure – it is fire resistant and a poor heat and electricity conductor, thus a preferred insulator.

Asbestos is also a versatile material that finds use in various construction aspects, such as soundproofing, ceilings, tiles, and insulation materials, among others.

However, studies show that asbestos breaks down into toxic microscopic fibres and people living under them inhale and ingest the particles. Inhaled asbestos particles can cause lung cancer, mesothelioma (a scarring of lung tissue), asbestosis and other upper respiratory tract infections.

DCI to open extra Sub-County offices in Marsabit County

BY SEBASTIAN MIRITI (KNA)

The Directorate of Criminal Investigations (DCI) is set to open offices in the newly created Sub-Counties of Sololo and Dukana, Marsabit County in order to make the entity more responsive to the needs of the residents.

Consequently, a team from the DCI's Logistics Division will be dispatched to the two localities to ascertain the parameters of setting up and operationalizing the offices within a month.

The DCI Director General, Mohamed Amin, speaking when he officiated the opening of Marsabit Central DCI Sub-County offices, built with the support from the local National Government Constituency Development fund(NG-CDF), noted that the security situation in Marsabit County had improved tremendously courtesy of the cooperation between the local leadership and law enforcement agencies.

Amin noted with appreciation that the Sh7 million office block would go a long way in enhancing service delivery to the local community, adding that his office would be posting more crime scene personnel to the county now that there was adequate space to accommodate them.

He pointed out that poor infrastructure has been a major impediment to the directorate in discharging its mandate and thanked Saku MP Col. (Rtd.) Dido Raso who was present for the magnificent office.

He hailed the local NG-CDF management for ensuring prudent use of public resources saying that the trickle effect of the facility in fighting crime and dispensing justice to the residents of Marsabit would be immense.

To this effect, he promised that the DCI would be processing certificates of good conduct within 14 days.

Initially, the Sub-County DCI office was operating in a container, which could hardly accommodate the Sub-County Head, together with personnel and the requisite equipment.

At the same time, the DCI Boss has said that Ethiopia and Kenya are working on a joint framework on how best to tackle cross-border crime.

He said the government was committed to eradicating crime, being fueled by the porous border, especially human and drug trafficking, as well as the smuggling of small arms, hence the need to open DCI offices in the border sub-counties to bolster the fight against the menace.

Amin added that he was in talks with his Ethiopian counterparts on areas of collaboration, aimed at taming cross border crime in order to create a more enabling environment for development and enhanced safety for citizens in the two countries.

Kenya advocates for just, inclusive and equitable climate financing as COP28 World Summit ends

BY BERNADINE MUTANU (MYGOV)

As the curtains fall on the world's largest gathering on climate change, Kenya has called for just, inclusive, and equitable climate financing.

Speaking at COP 28, Kenya's Investments, Trade, and Industry Cabinet Secretary, Ms. Rebecca Miano, urged world leaders to forge partnerships addressing both the effects of climate change and the global inequality it poses.

Ms. Miano emphasized the need for partnerships that drive policy roadmaps addressing environmental concerns while upholding principles of justice and equity. Despite Africa contributing minimally to global greenhouse gas emissions, the continent faces severe impacts of climate change. Ms. Miano stressed the importance of inclusivity, highlighting that developing nations bear the brunt of environmental degradation despite contributing less to the problem.

"A just and fair response to the climate crisis demands trade policies to include mechanisms to support those who bear the disproportionate burden of its effects and the most vulnerable economies in their transition to sustainable practices through financial assistance, technology transfer, capacity-building initiatives, and the promotion of sustainable practices," she asserted.

She noted that while Africa contributes little to global greenhouse gas emissions, the impact of climate change on the continent is severe.

"It is important to embrace the principle of inclusivity. The burden of climate change is not evenly distributed as developing nations often bear the brunt of environmental degradation despite contributing less to the problem.

"A just and fair response to the climate crisis demands trade policies to include mechanisms to support those who bear the disproportionate burden of its effects and the most vulnerable economies in their transition to sustainable practices through financial assistance, technology transfer, capacity-building initiatives, and the promotion of sustainable practices," she said.

Currently, Kenya is among the nine Eastern Africa countries affected by El Nino only a few months after experiencing a severe drought, with hundreds of thousands of people already displaced by immense flooding especially in Northeastern Kenya.

"...The frequency and intensity of extreme weather events, such as cyclones and floods continue to disrupt communities and strain already limited resources that threaten the livelihoods and well-being of millions," she said.

Ms. Rebecca Miano Kenya's Investments, Trade, and Industry Cabinet Secretary

The cabinet secretary said even as discussions on loss and damage continue, appropriate mechanisms for resilience and response "must be equally inclusive and far-reaching."

"A key component of this response lies in the development of a trade policy framework that not only facilitates economic growth but also one that is firmly rooted in environmental sustainability and social justice.

"At the outset, we must embark on the promotion of green trade practices through incentives and rewarding environmentally friendly practices in international trade," she said.

She emphasized the need for collaborative bilateral or multilateral agreements that recognize and facilitate the exchange of carbon credits in international trade to promote a more sustainable and interconnected global economy.

But African nations need to accelerate the operationalization of the Africa Continental Free Trade Area (AfCFTA) Agreement to enable and advance the green industrialization agenda, with a special emphasis on adding value to Africa's natural endowments, Miano said.

As such, Kenya has already signed into law the Climate Change (amendment) Bill, 2023, setting the stage for the regulation of carbon markets in the country with an aim of encouraging conservation of forests even as the country looks forward to planting 15 billion trees by 2032, she said.

Miano said Kenya has taken steps to mitigate the effects of climate change which include reducing tariffs on environmental goods such as solar equipment for industrial, home and farm use.

Also, in Kenya, renewable energy contributes to nearly 90 per cent of the electricity production while the country is adopting e-mobility with policies to support it as well as the carbon credit trading being developed, she said.

"Transitioning to cleaner trade is a pivotal step in addressing the environmental challenges posed by production, transportation, and global value chains (GVCs). To achieve this, it's essential to focus on reducing the carbon intensity of various processes, deploying climate-friendly technologies with a low environmental impact," she said.

Mining firm launches cash transfer programme in Kwale

BY HUSSEIN ABDULLAHI
(KNA)

The Kwale-based Australian mining firm Base Titanium has launched a cash transfer programme for the elderly in the areas.

The programme: 'Elders Empowerment Programme' has a biometric identification verification component for easy transfer of the cash.

In partnership with Kenya Red Cross Society Kwale Branch and Equity Bank Kenya, Base Titanium launched the Elders' Welfare Programme to cushion 500 vulnerable elders with monthly cash voucher assistance of Sh2,000 for the next 12 months effective November 2023.

According to Base Titanium's External Affairs General Manager Simon Wall, the development is part of the commitment and good will of Base Titanium towards supporting the host community.

Mr Wall said the Economic Empowerment Programme seeks to support the elderly and vulnerable persons in the community as part of the elderly inclusion in Base Titanium's social development programmes.

He says the initiative will see older persons from villages across Msambweni and Lunga-Lunga Sub-Counties impacted by mining activities receive a monthly stipend of Sh2,000, like the national government's Inua Jamii Cash Transfer Programme steered by the Ministry of Labour and Social Protection.

The top mining official said the money meant to cushion the elders against the tough economic times occasioned by the high cost of living will be disbursed electronically by Equity Bank through their contracted agents.

He said the mining firm recognises and upholds the importance of social protection mechanisms aimed at promoting human development and social equity.

The launching ceremony was attended by Base Titanium's External Affairs Manager Dr. Melba Wasunna, Kenya Red Cross Red Cross Society Coast Regional manager Hassan Musa and Equity Coast Region General Manager Joseph Ndungu among others.

Mr Wall said the beneficiaries identified through the Kwale Kenya Red Cross branch are persons aged above 60 years and not receiving any other pensions.

"The launch of this programme allows the elderly to directly benefit and be part of Base's projects. The youth have benefited through scholarships and jobs, women have livelihood enhancement projects and now it's time for our fathers to also feel the benefits," Wall said.

He said the new social protection system represents a significant shift towards a comprehensive and holistic approach to social protection across the company's mining life cycle.

"We wish to assure the beneficiaries of the vulnerable and older persons support project that the mining company will disburse their money at the appropriate time to cushion them against poverty," Wall said.

He further urged the beneficiaries of the comprehensive, integrated, and progressive cash assistance scheme to use the stipends wisely to better their lives.

Hassan Musa of Red Cross said the high level of extreme poverty and vulnerability with the perennial effects of droughts and floods provide a strong justification for the need for a social protection scheme to households with little or no self-help potential.

He says the pilot cash transfer scheme aims to assist the most destitute and incapacitated households in society to meet their basic needs, particularly health, food, and shelter.

On his part Joseph Ndungu of Equity Bank hailed the use of biometric ID verification system for the cash transfer programme saying it will reduce cases of fraud.

DP commends Competition Authority for protecting consumers

BY DPCS

Deputy President Rigathi Gachagua has commended the Competition Authority of Kenya for its work in the protection of consumers in the country.

However, the Deputy President told the government agency that it needed to do more particularly in raising public awareness to ensure the consumer is protected from unsafe practises.

The DP singled out harmonisation of global laws and integration of technology to combat illicit trade and eradicate exploitation of consumers as a key step in enhancing protection of consumers and their rights.

"A UN and Kenya Association of Manufacturers report indicate that consumers in our country are exposed to exploitation.

"For instance, two out of five medicines on the shelves are counterfeits, a factor that not only endangers the lives of consumers, but also injures confidence in modern treatment," he explained.

The DP was speaking in Nairobi during the opening of the 2023 Consumers International Global Congress.

Since its establishment in 2010, the Competition Authority of Kenya has received 500 complaints and the number of consumers impacted are over 20 million through the enforcement efforts.

One of the major interventions by the Authority that impacted over 30 million users of mobile money services involved disclosure and transparency practices by digital money lenders.

To entrench consumer rights, the Authority has been working with other sector regulators such as Kenya Bureau of Standards, Communication Authority, Anti-Counterfeit Authority, Energy and Petroleum Regulatory Authority, Department of Weights and Measures, Kenya Civil Aviation Authority among others.

While calling for enhanced public awareness and advocacy, the Deputy President noted that a report by the Kenya Anti Counterfeit Authority indicates that 30 per cent of counterfeit goods are locally manufactured while the other 70 per cent are smuggled into the market.

The Deputy President called for the harmonisation of the consumer protection laws globally and align them with technological advancement.

Additionally, he pushed for adoption of Artificial Intelligence to track, arrest and suppress the networks of consumer exploitations across the world.

He explained: "Because of the global connectedness of the physical and digital marketplace, harmonisation of the consumer protection laws is key for unified application in various jurisdictions. This is important especially in Africa where countries are at different stages and levels in consumer protection".

He further observed that as mobile banking and digital payments keep rising, more consumer issues emerge, hence relevant laws must be aligned to meet the demands of such developments.

International NGO's coffee project to boost incomes of 10,000 Gusii farmers

BY JANE NAITORE (KNA)
 An international non-profit organization has initiated a program to rejuvenate agricultural land, aiming to enhance the incomes of around 10,000 smallholder coffee farmers in the Gusii region.

The organization is also focusing on improving the landscapes of the farmers' lands and supply chains through a process designed to restore ecosystems and boost farmer incomes in the region.

The organization, known as the Rainforest Alliance, intends to bring together farm and forest communities, companies, government, civil society, and other individuals to drive positive change in the Gusii region and other areas through a unique process called 'regenerative agriculture.'

During the official launch of the Gusii Regenerative Agriculture Landscape (GuRAL) Coffee Project in Kisii town, Rainforest Alliance Country Director, Ms. Marion Nduta Ng'ang'a, stated that her organization ensures the harmony of agricultural business and forests to ensure thriving businesses for the beneficiaries.

Ng'ang'a mentioned that Kenya is one of 60 countries in the global south where the organization assists farmers in obtaining certification through sustainable agriculture standards, resilience building through livelihood strengthening, and alternative income-generating activities.

Ms Ng'ang'a expressed optimism that the targeted farmers will within two years be able to scale up the initiative to all other parts of the Gusii region.

Ng'ang'a explained that the Alliance was implementing other landscape and community projects in Kenya especially in the Mt. Kenya area through a Sustainable Landscapes and Livelihoods (MSULI Program) which is targeting 50,000 small holder coffee and tea farmers and 1000 forest communities in especially Embu and Kirinyaga Counties. The County Executive Committee Member for Agriculture livestock and Fisheries in Nyamira County, Ms. Alice Manoti said the partnership will ensure farmers apply best agricultural practices to revitalize Coffee which is one of the prioritized crops in the area.

Ms Manoti noted that with the construction of industrial parks, the farmers stood to benefit through organized and increased production.

The CEC said the region was ready to embrace environmental management processes required by the international standards so that produce can penetrate the global market stage without hindrances.

The Chief Executive Officer for Gusii Coffee farmers Cooperative Union Dr. Robert Mainya said the union which composed of the 28 cooperative societies with 72 coffee factories needed the partnership because they might not be able to sell their produce to any country in Europe by 2024 unless they were certified.

He applauded those societies that have already been certified including Kiomoocha, Marani, Nyaturubo, Gesonso, Marani, Nyamache and Girango.

Rainforest Alliance which has been in existence in at least 60 countries works to restore the balance between people and nature for both to thrive in harmony.

The project launch follows a decline in Kenyan coffee production by 50 per cent over the last 25 years, stagnating at around 40,000 metric tons per year.

State to work with counties to support heritage sites nationwide

■ The Government is committed to supporting counties in showcasing, preserving, and protecting cultural and heritage sites for national integration, cohesion, and peace.

The Principal Secretary for the State Department for Culture, Arts, and Heritage, Ms. Ummy Bashir, stated that Kenya's rich history, culture, literature, cultural sites, and heritage sites have an enormous positive impact globally. They also have the potential to earn billions of shillings in foreign exchange.

Ms. Bashir spoke during the official opening of the 96th edition of the Kenya Music and Cultural Festival (KMCF) at Wote Technical Institute in Wote, Makeni.

"We, as the State Department of Culture, Arts, and Heritage, shall hold more functions and events with counties showcasing arts, culture, protecting, preserving, and promoting our heritage sites," said Bashir. "Our cultural expressions, crafts, music, dance, literature, theatre, cuisines, language dialects, films, fashion design, and visual arts—carvings, shrines, caves, and circuit tourism—demonstrate our country's reputation as a peaceful and hospitable nation," she explained.

At least 30 counties will participate in the festivals, with 14 counties already registered. "We need to work together and encourage other counties to emulate Makeni in this partnership," noted Bashir.

She said Kenya in collaboration with UNESCO is working towards repatriating lost artifacts and skulls, including famous heads skulls of world notorious pair of male man eater's lions of Tsavo forest.

"As a country we are headed in the right direction and acknowledge that Kenya passed and approved the 1972 UNESCO convention on repatriating of artifacts, illegal imports and exports of these objects," Bashir noted.

Health centre gifted with equipment worth Sh11m

■ Sheldrick Wildlife Trust, in collaboration with its global networks, has donated equipment worth Sh11 million to Mtitu Andei Health Centre in Kibwezi East Sub-County, Makeni County.

Among the equipment donated to the health centre are bed linen (20 sets), stretchers (5), beds with mattresses (20), drug trolley machines (3), a newborn resuscitation machine, a portable ultrasound machine, a portable X-ray machine, dressing trolleys (5), an automated chemistry analyzer, an industrial washer laundry machine (2), and an automated hematology analyzer.

Other equipment includes a Chroma machine, an electric microscope, four 200-liter freezers, four No frost fridges, a standby generator, infusion drip stands (10), five baby incubators for preterm infants, three oxygen concentrators, and a dental chair.

"We sincerely trust that the provision of these vital resources will significantly contribute to the improvement of healthcare services at the health facility," said Mr. Robert Sheldrick, Director at Sheldrick Wildlife Trust, while handing over the equipment at the Mtitu Andei Health Centre.

"This assistance is important to the hospital, and we shall continue assisting the community where we can," said Sheldrick, who is involved in conservation matters, especially at Chyulu National Park. On conservation, he called for concerted efforts from all people to conserve the environment, which he said is being destroyed each day.

"We have only one Earth; we should not destroy it because we don't have an alternative," reiterated Sheldrick. "This assistance has come from donors who share the same message of conserving our environment. Our environment brings rain and gives us food. I pray this message reaches all," he said.

Speaking at the same event, Makeni Governor Mutula Kilongo Jr. said he will elevate the hospital to a Level IV, in addition to increasing the number of workers such as nurses and doctors at the health facility.

Thanking the donors for the donation, Mutula welcomed more partners to the county, adding that his government will work with all partners to uplift the lives of the people of Makeni.

"My government, through the health department, will work closely with Sheldrick Wildlife Trust and other partners to ensure that the provision of health services to our people is improved," Mutula said.

Lack of professional career guidance key factor in low transition rates—Machogu

BY MICHAEL OMONDI (KNA)

The Ministry of Education in Kenya has pinpointed the absence of professional career guidance in basic education levels as a significant factor contributing to low transition rates of secondary school students to higher learning institutions.

This gap is also held responsible for the skills deficiency observed in the country's labor market, resulting in a mismatch between employers' needs and the skills possessed by school leavers.

Education Cabinet Secretary Ezekiel Machogu highlighted that many young people in Kenya enter the job market without adequate skills due to a lack of proper career guidance from primary school to university level.

CS Ezekiel Machogu

He spoke at the 2nd National Career Guidance Development Conference, organized by The Career Development Association of Kenya (CDAK), focusing on leveraging career guidance to enhance lifelong transitions and youth employability amid ongoing education reforms.

Quoting the Kenya Universities and Colleges Central

Placement Service (KUCPS), Machogu noted a transition rate of 32% for secondary school graduates (2022 cohort) to vocational training, technical institutions, or universities during the 2023/2024 placement cycle.

However, he expressed concern over the Economic Survey indicating an overall transition rate of only 30% from secondary to post-secondary education in recent years.

Much more ominously, the Economic Survey indicated a transition rate of only 30% from secondary to post-secondary education over the last few years leaving a substantial 70 per cent unaccounted for. Machogu criticised the Presidential Working Party on Education Reforms for inadequate career guidance structures in schools and suggested a review of these frameworks.

In a speech read on his behalf by Dr Meshack Opwora, the Director -TVET in the Ministry, the Cabinet Secretary decried the low transition rates to vocational training, technical institutions and universities which had intensified youth unemployment in the country, which currently stands at 67% compared to the national unemployment rate of 12.7 per cent.

"Young people in Kenya face a monumental challenge of employment. Industry reports show that the youth unemployment rate is 67 per cent compared to the overall unemployment rate of 12.7% in the country and this does not inspire hope," he lamented.
