Revised entry requirements for TTCs lead to massive enrolment

The review of the entry requirement forms part of the recommendations that were proposed by the Presidential Working Party on Education Reforms (PWPER).

BY DOUGLAS NAMUNANE (PCO)

At least 12,000 trainees have recently enrolled in the 32 Public Teacher Training Colleges (TTCs) following the Government's decision to amend the entry requirements for new applicants.

This revision has increased the total number of trainees in TTCs to slightly over 14,000, breathing new life into these institutions, which have struggled with low enrollment for years. Education Cabinet Sec-number is actually increasing.

Over 12,000 students have joined our 32 TTCs, a significant rise from the previous meager figure of 1,700.

This indicates that we were, in a way, on the verge of closing teacher training colleges."

The review of the entry requirement forms part of the recommendations that were proposed by the Presidential Working Party on Education Reforms (PWPER).

In their findings, the Prof. Raphael Munavu led team established that a section of Kenya Certificate of Secondary Education holders who had attained a mean retary, Ezekiel Machogu, noted that the revised requirements have provided numerous aspiring educators with the opportunity to receive teacher training. Machogu remarked, "The

Kisumu port's capacity doubles with MV Uhuru II ship commissioning

BY ROBERT OJWANG (KNA)

Kenya is on the verge of becoming a significant shipping hub with the commissioning and launch of the MV Uhuru II wagon ferry, a project valued at Sh2.4 billion, at the Kenya Shipyards Limited (KSL) in Kisumu County.

During the inauguration ceremony, President William Ruto highlighted the necessity of constructing this 100-meter-long vessel, MV Uhuru II, to complement MV Uhuru I and meet the rising demand for transporting goods within the Lake Victoria region. The President commended KSL for achieving this milestone, stating that it positions Kenya as a destination for shipbuilding and repair in the East Africa region.

Further, he underscored Kenya Shipyards' ability to build, repair and maintain ships for the local and regional markets as a reflection of the nation's commitment to harnessing available resources and talents to meet the region's growing demand for quality maritime services.

"MV Uhuru II before us is not only a means of transportation, but also a catalyst for economic grade of C plain were not eligible to secure admissions at various teacher colleges due to cluster requirements.

Machogu, however, hastened to say the elimination of the cluster requirement was not meant to compromise the quality of education.

“What was done before was insensitive, irresponsible and really we cannot allow that kind of situation. And that is why I commit to implement and enforce the recommendations made by the Presidential Working Party and remove the cluster element that was there before which does not mean that we are compromising the quality of education”, he stated.

Machogu made the remarks in Mandera County when he led other education officials to launch various infrastructural projects including the Mandera Teachers Training College, the Technical Training Institute as well as the County Education Taskforce Report.

He said the government will implement in totality the recommendations in the PWPER report.

At the same time, the Cabinet Secretary banned transfer of non-local teachers from the Northern Counties of Kenya.

“This tendency of some people saying that they want to move out of this area because of one reason or another, we are not going to allow nor agree with it”, he added.

Mr. Machogu further said that, the government is committed to addressing the teacher shortage experienced in the northern regions of the country.

“We will take action by making sure that we post more teachers now that we have good enrollment in our teacher colleges”, the Cabinet Secretary further said.

He said the government has put in place adequate measures to ensure that early exposure of exams does not take place anywhere across the country.

growth and development in our region. It will facilitate trade, create jobs, and open up opportunities for businesses to thrive,” stated the Head of State.

Dr. Ruto added, “There exist enormous business prospects in the construction, repair and maintenance of maritime vessels in the region and I urge KSL to go for these opportunities.”

President Ruto pointed out that Kenya Shipyards has been contracted to repair and maintain marine vessels for various ministries, state departments, and agencies like the Kenya Ports Authority, Kenya Coast Guards, Kenya Maritime Authority, Kenya Marine Research Institute and other private operators in the Indian Ocean as well as Lake Victoria.

According to the President, the revival of Kenya’s maritime transport and logistics sector through ship-building corroborates with the Bottom Up Economic Transformation Agenda (BETA) which recognises the blue economy as a critical component of sustainable national economic growth peaking at the same event, the Managing Director, KSL, Maj. Gen. Paul Otieno noted that MV Uhuru II which had been constructed from scratch by KSL personnel in conjunction with Damen Gorinchem company from the Netherlands would double Kisumu port’s haulage capacity to over 2,300 tonnes.

“There exist enormous prospects in the construction, repair of maritime vessels” President

The vessel, he said, will navigate, connect economies, forge partnerships and contribute to the marine commerce within the East Africa Community.

MV Uhuru I, built in 1965, was brought into operation after her successful rehabilitation by the Kenya Defence Forces in 2019 with a capacity to carry 1,260 tonnes of cargo.

Subsequently, MV Uhuru II is capable of transporting 1,063 tonnes of cargo and is optimised for transportation of petroleum oil products as well as cereals, fertilisers, sugar and seeds.

Construction of MV Uhuru II was completed within a period of 24 months, 12 months ahead of the usual 36 that it ordinarily takes to complete a project of such magnitude.

Cabinet approves Sh117b bailout for struggling state owned sugar companies

BY CHRIS MAHANDARA (KNA)

The Cabinet has approved a Sh117 billion bailout for six state owned sugar factories in the Western and Nyanza regions.

During a sitting held at the Kisumu State Lodge, the Cabinet directed the National Treasury to work on the necessary paperwork to facilitate the process.

President Dr. William Ruto, who chaired the meeting, said the executive will submit a supplementary budget to the National Assembly for approval for the funds to be made available as the government moves to revive the sugar industry.

"The cabinet has approved Sh. 117 billion to clear debts of the six state owned sugar millers. This will ensure that all these debts are put behind as we move to lease the sugar factories," he said.

Speaking at the Kenya Shipyards Limited (KSL) in Muhoroni Sugar Company premises. Cabinet has approved Sh117b bailout for struggling state owned sugar companies.

Kisumu, where he commissioned the newly build MV Uhuru II vessel, the president said the bailout targets South Nyanza Sugar (SONY), Nzoia Sugar, Muhoroni, Chemelil, Miiwani and Mumias

This region has potential for many other crops including cotton, maize, vegetables

Sugar companies which are earmarked for leasing.

The government, he said, was determined to revive the sector adding that the money shall be released to the factories by this week as preparations for leasing the firms continue.

Leasing, he added, was set to inject capital in the struggling firms and ensure they operate optimally to save farmers from agony.

The programme, he said, was set to benefit not only farmers but also members of the community, adding that the land on which the factories sit will continue to be in the hands of the community and government.

"Initially the nucleus and all the other facilities did not directly benefit the community.

Members of the community will now use county governments or any other entity that shall be agreed upon to benefit from the nucleus owned by the factories," he said.

Apart from sugarcane, he said the government through the Bottom-Up Economic Transformation Agenda (BETA) was on course to revive agriculture in the Nyanza region.

"It is not only sugarcane that we are focusing on. This region has potential for many other crops including cotton, maize, vegetables and beans," he said.

Among the key interventions, he said is the expansion of the Lower Nzoia Irrigation Project at a cost of Sh5.9 billion.

A similar venture, he added, has been planned in Migori County with the Lower Kuja Irrigation Project set to be expanded by 14,000 acres.

The two projects, he said, target to scale up rice production in the country.

ADC Board commits to ensuring food security through partnerships

BY SADIK HASSAN(KNA)

The newly inaugurated Agricultural Development Corporation (ADC) Board has made a commitment to ensuring that the country achieves food self-sufficiency following the recent prolonged drought.

To achieve this goal, the Board is actively seeking partnerships with the private sector, focusing on maximizing the potential of ADC lands in Galana Kulalu, Tana River County, and the ADC Kisiwani Complex in Malindi, Kilifi County.

Mohammed Bulle, the Managing Director of ADC, mentioned the government's encouragement of Public-Private Sector Partnerships (PPP) through the PPP Act, and the ADC's intention to move in that direction.

Speaking during a visit to the ADC Kisiwani Complex in Malindi, where the new Board, led by Chairman Abdillahi Alawy, toured the Galana Kulalu project in Tana River, Bulle expressed the Board's commitment to finding suitable private sector partners to enhance food production and nutrition security in the country.

Several private sector entities, including the Nyumba Foundation, Twiga Foods, and Sheldrick Wildlife Trust, have submitted applications expressing their interest in collaborating with the government.

These partnerships aim to boost local production of edible oil, increase maize production, and contribute to wildlife and vegetation conservation efforts in the Galana Farm region.

The Board has visited other parts of the country including Kitale, where there are satellite ADC facilities to assess them in their orientation tour.

According to the MD, partnership with the private sector, will happen in Galana and not at the ADC Kisiwani complex.

"It is going to happen in the near future," Bulle said.

cranes (STTs) have replaced the decommissioned ones at berth number 16.

"For yard operations, the Authority has acquired an additional nine empty container handlers, 12 reach stackers and terminal tractors to keep up with the demand occasioned by rising cargo volumes in the Kilindini Harbour," the KPA MD revealed.

He added that Harbour Mobile Cranes have also been delivered, with three cranes deployed to the Port of Lamu and with the first phase of Port of Lamu up and running, the port will receive three ships-to-shore gantry cranes by the end of year to make the facility a fully fledged container terminal.

KPA is liaising with partner government agencies like Lamu Port South Sudan Ethiopia (LAPSSET), the Kenya National Highways Authority (KENHA), and National Lands Commission (NLC) to fastrack completion of other infrastructure like roads network, roadside stations along the corridor including truck marshalling yards, service centres and resting places.

Stakeholders in Kajiado call for laws to control sand harvesting

BY ROP JANET (KNA)

Stakeholders and environmentalists in Kajiado County are urging the local government to enact laws regulating sand harvesting in the area to combat environmental degradation.

During a public participation forum held in Kajiado Town, the participants highlighted the severe environmental damage caused by uncontrolled sand harvesting over the years.

They emphasized the urgent need for legislation to manage this practice and reduce its harmful impacts.

According to Kajiado Youth Senate Representative Gideon Toimasi, sand harvesting in Kajiado was a ticking time bomb and there was need for swift enactment of legislation to regulate the sector.

Toimasi noted that the region had experienced the effects of environmental impacts including riverbank degradation, soil erosion, destruction of wildlife habitat, biodiversity loss, sedimentation of seasonal rivers, and drying up of tributaries.

“As much as we are earning from sand harvesting, there is a need to regulate the sector so as to protect the environment for posterity and ensure ecologically sustainable development and use of natural resources,” he said.

Toimasi added that apart from the negative effects on the environment, drugs and substance abuse and child labor were on the rise as many young boys were dropping out of school to work as sand loaders.

The Youth Senate representative revealed that they had petitioned the County Assembly to pass the Kajiado County Sand Harvesting and Quarry Bill 2020, which would ensure the regulation of sand harvesting in the county.

He said once the laws are enacted, the sector will benefit all stakeholders including the sand harvesters and loaders who are often exploited by middlemen.

“Once the bill is passed by the Assembly, all parties will benefit fully from it and there will be no more exploitation by rogue sand dealers. There will be regulation on how the community can harvest sand while protecting the environment,” Toimasi remarked.

Rashid Muzee, an environmental activist, echoed Toimasi's remarks adding that many families relied on sand harvesting as a source of income but do not benefit fully from it due to exploitation by middlemen and sand dealers.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC TO SUBMIT COMMENTS ON THE DRAFT STRATEGIC ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT (SEA) REPORT FOR THE REVIEWED INTEGRATED NATIONAL TRANSPORT POLICY (INTP)

In light of the provisions of section 57 A of the Environmental Management and Coordination Act (EMCA) 1999, Regulation 42 and 43 of Environmental (Impact Assessment and Audit) Regulations, 2003, the National Environment Management Authority (NEMA) has received a Draft Strategic Environmental Assessment report for the Reviewed Integrated National Transport Policy (INTP). The SEA findings are expected to integrate the existing sectoral policies, plans and programs to establish sustainable development mechanisms.

The State Department for Transport is the Policy owner and recognizes that an appropriate INTP is the prerequisite for attaining an excellent transport system that is responsive to the needs of the people and the industry. The INTP intends to promote the Country's development in terms of integrating production, marketing and population centres hence facilitating mobility in rural and urban areas, national and regional integration, trade promotions, improving the welfare of the people and Kenya's competitiveness.

The policy is based on the recognition that the construction of transport infrastructure systems and their maintenance often affect the environment, leads to displacement of human settlements loss of livelihoods, habitat fragmentation among other negative changes in the environment. As such there is need to ensure that the environmental, social, health and safety considerations are incorporated in transport infrastructure development, management and operations to safeguard the environment and human health.

A summary of the proposed environmental management and monitoring plan for the Integrated National Transport policy is highlighted in the table below. The proposed mitigation strategies are aimed at minimizing the negative impacts while enhancing the positive ones.

MCSK – Music industry in Kenya poised for better times

BY MUTISO MBITHI (MYGOV)

The Music Copyright Society of Kenya (MCSK) is upbeat that recent commitments by the government to monetise the music sector through the Talanta Hela Programme and the unveiling of various policy measures and enactment of legislation to fight piracy so that musicians get compensation commensurate to costs of production and standards of living will put billions of shillings in the pockets of the artists.

The MCSK says that the policy measures unveiled and the legislation to be passed by the Government will fight poverty, depression and drug abuse among them by putting money in their pockets.

MCSK Chief Executive Officer Dr. Ezekiel Mutua says under the Kenya Kwanza government, music is being recognized as a business and the copyright ecosystem is being streamlined to maximise profits and ensure that music becomes a profitable and respectable business for Kenyans.

Dr. Mutua acknowledges

that the Government has lined up new initiatives to spur growth of the music industry.

He said that the launch of the Talanta Hela Program which is a flagship project to monetise sports and creative arts under the Ministries of Sports and Youth Affairs as well as Gender, Culture and the Arts in line with the Bottom UP Economic Transformation Agenda (BETA) as well as the rolling out of the Blank Tape Levy otherwise known as Private Copying are among some of the key initiatives which are likely to take the industry to a new level.

Dr. Mutua, who was speaking to MyGov in an exclusive interview, said the Blank Tape Levy will generate between Sh6 to 11billion for the MCSK members once it gets fully operationalised through levying a nominal fee for all gadgets with copyrighted materials and the Society was collaborating with the Kenya Revenue Authority (KRA), the Kenya Copyright Board (KECOBO) to identify those producing the gadgets to collect the levy.

"This new Levy is poised to immensely benefit all musicians, book publishers and audio visual performers as the sector transitions from the old and traditional methods of collecting royalties from those who play music in their hotels, public service vehicles, broadcasters, clubs and it will also target to collect money from new media like tiktok, youtube, instagram with renewed government support," Dr Mutua said

"The Government has begun to understand that music is business and that it can create jobs and wealth but also act as a tool to re-engineer Kenya's moral fabric and with government support, we are championing the interests of musicians given that music could be deployed as a vehicle of shaping national values.

Institute pilots game-changing saline water purification for agriculture

BY EMMANUEL MASHA (KNA)

The Kenya Marine and Fisheries Institute (KMFI) is currently piloting a saline water purification technology that could potentially revolutionize agriculture in Kenya's arid and semi-arid areas (ASALs), turning them into food-producing regions.

This innovative technology also has the potential to produce lithium, a valuable natural element used in various industries, including the manufacturing of lithium metal, lithium-ion batteries, heat-resistant glass, ceramics, and lithium grease lubricants.

Known as the "Seawater Greenhouse Technology and Lithium Mining from Saltworks Project," this initiative is undergoing pilot testing in the Kadzuhoni area of Magarini Sub County, Kilifi County.

Notably, it is one of only two such projects in Africa, with the other being piloted in Somalia.

Dr. Joseph Nyngi Kamau, a research scientist at KMFI, has explained that the technology is most feasible in regions with abundant saline water, strong winds, and high temperatures, making places like Turkana potential candidates.

Dr. Joseph Nyngi Kamau, a research scientist at KMFI, says the technology is feasible in areas that have huge amounts of saline water, strong winds and high temperatures, such as Turkana.

The research sci-

The innovative technology also has the potential to produce lithium, a valuable natural element - Kamau entist explains that the saline water from the sea or aquifers is sprinkled on an evaporator setup erected on a greenhouse that is constructed using paper local materials to form two radiator-like structures - the evaporator on the windward side and a condenser on the opposite side - while the roof and the other sides are covered by polythene materials.

Dr. Kamau says that the windy environment provides a gust of wind flow into the greenhouse, which evaporates the water from the evaporator into the greenhouse and flows to the other end where it passes through a heat exchanger to warm the humid air.

The research scientist adds that the humid air then passes through a condenser where it condenses and is collected in a reservoir, ready to be used to water crops and for domestic purposes.

KenGen gets nod for Gogo Hydro power in Western Kenya

BY AMON KIPYEGO (MYGOV)

The Cabinet has granted approval for the Kenya Electricity Generating Company PLC (KenGen) to initiate the Gogo Hydropower Redevelopment Project, marking a significant step towards harnessing clean energy in Western Kenya for the first time.

This decision, made during a Cabinet meeting chaired by President William Ruto at the Kisumu State Lodge, offers hope to the people of Western Kenya, who stand to benefit from this transformative and environmentally resilient project.

According to KenGen Managing Director, Eng. Peter Njenga, the Gogo Hydropower Redevelopment Project, located along the picturesque banks of the River Kuja in Migori County, aims to increase the dam's electricity generation capacity from 2MW to a robust 8.6MW.

Eng. Njenga noted that beyond its economic impact, this transformative endeavour aligns with Kenya's commitment to clean energy and bolsters its efforts to achieve the 100 per cent clean energy targets outlined in the Global Climate Action Agenda.

"The Cabinet's approval of the Gogo Hydropower Redevelopment Project is a momentous milestone for the people of Western Kenya and a testament to the government's commitment to regional development," said Eng. Njenga.

He added, "This project not only signifies progress in the energy sector, but also holds the promise of economic growth, job creation and improved livelihoods for our communities while contributing to our clean energy goals."

"The existing power plant, with its origins dating back to 1958, has admirably served its purpose, but now suffers frequent breakdowns and the challenges of sourcing spare parts due to its aging infrastructure.

The MD said, the Gogo Project is set to rejuvenate the reliability of power supply, while stimulating socio-economic activities across the entire Nyanza and Western Kenya Regions.

Western Kenya hosts several significant power plants, including, Sondu Miriu Hydropower Plant, generating an impressive 60MW, Sang'oro Hydropower Plant with a capacity of 20MW and the substantial Turkwel Hydropower Plant, boasting a remarkable 105MW capacity.

These existing power facilities, Eng. Njenga said, have been essential in meeting the region's energy needs and fostering economic growth.

He said the people of Western Kenya in particular, are poised to benefit significantly from these combined efforts and the increased power generation capacity of the Gogo Hydropower Redevelopment Project, coupled with the contributions from existing power plants, will provide a reliable and steady supply of electricity.

The people of Western Kenya in particular, are poised to benefit significantly - Njenga

New road to rejuvenate more attractions for Tsavo tourism circuit

BY WAGEMA MWANGI(KNA)

The 54-km Mto Mwa-godi-Dawida-Mbale-Wundanyi-Bura road, currently under construction at a cost of Sh 2.1 billion, is expected to rejuvenate historical tourism in Taita Taveta County and open the region to international tourism.

The road, the largest capital-intensive project in the county, passes through several villages in Mwatate and Wundanyi sub-counties.

Upon completion in September 2024, the road is anticipated to boost crop and livestock farming, improve access to schools and health facilities, and attract multiple investors.

Taita-Taveta County Commissioner, Ms. Josephine Onunga, stated that the road will particularly benefit the tourism sector, with Wundanyi becoming a new addition to the Tsavo Tourism Circuit.

She encouraged tourism stakeholders to capitalize on the improved road to market the region and attract visitors, which would generate employment, increase local revenue, and establish the area as a premier tourist destination.

A section of the 54-km Mto Mwa-godi-Dawida-Mbale-Wundanyi-Bura road in Taita-Taveta County that is nearing completion.

The road is also expected to enhance farmers' access to markets in Voi and Mombasa and promote the growth of businesses along its route, thereby benefitting the crop and dairy sector value chains for farmers in Wundanyi, Bura, and Mwatate.

The project aims to make the Tsavo tourism circuit more attractive and incorporate historical and cultural tourism, adding value to the concept of home-stays.

Ms Onunga adds that despite the delays that had faced the project in the past, the contractor was on site and had completed the first milestone of around 5.4 km.

Ms. Onunga pointed out that one of the sectors poised to benefit immensely from the completed project is tourism and Wundanyi will become the new addition to the Tsavo Tourism Circuit.

The administrator consequently urged the tour stakeholders and promoters to take advantage of the road and market their products to potential clients which she said will create jobs, increase grassroots revenue and market the region as a prime tourist destination.

"Once complete, it will allow the Tsavo tourism circuit to get an extra destination. We are hoping that stakeholders in the tour sector will exploit this chance and promote the hills and other areas as part of key tourist attractions," she says.

She also pointed out that the road will bolster farming activities through enhancing farmers' access to markets in Voi and Mombasa while promoting establishment of businesses along the winding route.

"The road is also intended to bolster the crop and dairy sector value chains for thousands of farmers in Wundanyi, Bura and Mwatate," she said.

National Environment Management Authority

PUBLIC NOTICE

As you are aware, the Kenya Meteorological Department has issued an early warning that the El-Nino phenomena may be experienced in our country from the month of October 2023. They have warned of above average rains which may result in flooding.

In previous flooding incidents, urban areas have experienced clogging of the drainage infrastructure by waste especially from packaging, textiles and diapers among others. This exacerbates the flooding menace leading to loss of life and property. Further, the post-consumer waste degrades our wetland ecosystems such as rivers, lakes, swamps, oceans among others

In view of the above, the Authority advises as follows:-

- Members of the public to ensure that they keep off ecologically sensitive areas prone to flood incidences such as riparian, hill tops and areas prone to land-slides.
- County Governments and other relevant entities to ensure storm drains are cleared of any materials that hinder free flow of storm water
- Owners of dams, water pans and earth dams and other water bodies should institute appropriate risk management measures including dam inspections, monitoring and maintenance systems, emergency preparedness, communication and community outreach systems to safeguard public safety and the environment.
- All project owners should ensure that they adhere to the conditions of the Environmental Impact Assessment licenses issued by the Authority as well as the Environmental management plans submitted to NEMA.
- Operators and owners of any facility storing chemicals to take appropriate measures to prevent flood water getting into contact with the chemicals.
- Producers: Attention to Section 13 of the Sustainable Waste Management Act, 2022 requires producers to bear mandatory Extended Producer Responsibility obligations to reduce pollution and environmental impacts of the products they introduce to the Kenyan market and waste arising therefrom. In this regard the producers should ensure that their post-consumer waste does not clog drainage systems, obstruct flow of rivers or cause pollution to the ecosystems. The Authority shall not hesitate to take legal action on any producer and associated Producer Responsibility organizations (PRO) whose product or packaging is found littering the environment.

The Authority remains committed to ensuring a clean, healthy and sustainable environment for all. Our environment, Our life, our responsibility.

Small scale farmers call on Government to recognize and protect informal seed sector

BY ANNE MWALE (KNA)

Farmers in the Central Rift are now urging the national government to promote the production of indigenous crops and ensure access to their seeds as a means to mitigate the effects of climate change.

Over 500 farmers, operating under the Makongo Agriculturalists Network (MAN), are also calling for both levels of government to devise policies aimed at safeguarding the sovereignty of Kenya's indigenous seeds.

This is seen as a vital step towards enhancing food security and preserving the rich variety of indigenous seeds.

While appealing to the government to address the shortage of indigenous seeds, organic farm inputs, and ensure access to markets, MAN's spokesperson, Mr. Francis Ngiri, emphasized the importance of implementing systems to identify and document all Kenyan seed varieties. This approach aims to protect sovereignty, preserve historical heritage, and bolster food security.

A farmer showcases cassava tubers during an Indigenous Seed Networking and Exhibition Symposium organized by Seed Savers Network in collaboration with the County Government of Nakuru at Gilgil trading center.

Ngiri made the remarks during an Indigenous Seed Networking and Exhibition Symposium organized by the Seed Savers Network in collaboration with the County Government of Nakuru at Gilgil trading center. The event brought together smallholder farmers, botanists, entomologists, agronomists, agricultural economists, meteorologists, and a host of other professionals.

Ngiri highlighted that the conservation and utilization of traditional crop varieties offer a wealth of crop genetic diversity and should be recognized as critical for climate change adaptation.

He pointed out that more than 80 percent of small-scale farmers in the country rely on the traditional seed sector, even though the country's seed laws and regulations do not acknowledge the informal seed sector. It's currently illegal to sell uncertified seeds in Kenya, including traditional seeds sold in local markets.

Due to Intellectual Property Rights and the Plant Variety Act, which currently prohibit farmers from selling or exchanging unregistered seeds, the Seed Savers Network is encouraging farmers to participate in community seed banks. This way, they can protect their seeds from issues of bio-piracy and theft.

Ngiri emphasized the need for lawmakers and technocrats at both levels of government to develop legislation and policies that allow farmers to produce safer and healthier foods using readily available indigenous seeds, which they can freely share among themselves.

He also revealed that the Network is promoting the use of traditional farming methods to smallholder farmers, which are pesticide-free and cost-effective. These methods enable farmers to increase their household incomes while improving their nutritional status.

Ngiri explained, "Indigenous seeds go hand in hand with traditional farming. Farming should be an enjoyable and profitable venture for many, not something that many small-scale farmers cannot afford."

Germany donates Sh25m eye unit to Taita-Taveta

Germany has officially handed over an eye unit to the Taita County government at Moi County Referral Hospital, marking a significant milestone in their collaborative effort to enhance eye health-care services in the region. The construction of this state-of-the-art eye center, valued at Sh 25 million, was made possible through funding from the German non-profit NGO, Deutsches Blindenhilfswerk (DBHW), in conjunction with the Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation in Germany, facilitated by Salus Oculi Kenya. During the handover ceremony, Simone Henzler, representing DBHW, expressed her satisfaction with the successful completion of the project's first phase. She emphasized that this achievement was a testament to the fruitful partnership between the county and their development partners. Furthermore, she underscored that the newly established eye unit would be instrumental in providing essential eye care services to patients with visual impairments, not only within the region but also to those from neighboring areas.

"We are delighted to have collaborated on and completed this initial phase of the project, which will be instrumental in offering much-needed eye care services to those who require them," she said.

Though the referral hospital has been running a small eye-unit that was faced with challenges of confined space, the fully-fledged eye unit will now have its own stand-alone building, compound and adequate space. Poised to be one of the biggest in Coast region, the unit boasts of a theater, sluice rooms, male and female wards, sterilization and scrub rooms. Governor Andrew Mwadime hailed the project as one of the most critical in terms of enhancing eye-health care for thousands of residents suffering from eye ailments. He stated that the county will continue to engage donors and partners in a bid to woo them to establish more facilities that will serve the residents.

The Governor said his administration would work with all partners in a bid to deliver projects and bring development to the region.

Mr. Osero highlighted that KPA's CSI programs focus on various areas, including health, education, sports, environment, humanitarian aid, water and sanitation, women and youth empowerment, arts and culture, as well as social infrastructure, among others.

"We usually have four circuits in various parts of the country that is the Western, Rift Valley, Central and Nairobi which we use to promote sports and talent," explained Osero.

He noted that the Authority realized that while supporting golf, they were focusing on a different segment of society and that is why they decided to also focus on the less fortunate so as to incorporate everyone.

"We decided to focus on the less fortunate children and we have made various donations to the Machakos Girls Recue center, Rwanda children's home, Nakuru Hill Special School and Kisii Special School for the Deaf among others," said Osero.

Vet Lab sports club Vice Lady Captain Priscilla Karobia said that their members who were born in May (May Babies) have adopted the Nairobi Children's Rescue Centre that they have been supporting over time.

BY ESTHER MWANGI(KNA)

The construction of the Lord Egerton Agro-industrial Park, a multi-billion-dollar project aimed at transforming the Central Rift region into a major commercial hub, has finally commenced.

Mr. Stephen Muiruri, the County Executive Committee Member (CECM) for Trade, Culture, and Tourism in Nakuru, revealed that the industrial park would host a variety of industries, including ICT hubs, energy sector companies, engineering and construction firms, and chemical industries.

He, further, explained that the County government, in collaboration with Egerton University and the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries, was developing this facility on 200 acres at the University's Ngongongeri farm in Njoro. The goal of the industrial park is to attract private investors to establish food processing plants, adding value to agricultural produce.

Mr Muiruri noted that support from National government had unlocked the delays in the implementation of the over Sh 3 billion project, that is expected to create more than 4,000 employment opportunities upon completion.

Speaking when the County Government handed over the site to a contractor, Mr Muiruri disclosed that the devolved unit's County Aggregation Industrial Park (CAIP) and Export Processing Zone (EPZ) have each been allocated 100 acres at the University's Ngongongeri farm.

He said the County Government had approved a policy document to establish and implement County Aggregation Industrial Parks (CAIPS) and Special Economic Zones

"The CAIP project is a partnership between the State Department for Industry and the Council of Governors (COG) and it will see Nakuru County allocate 250 million shillings towards the initiative this financial year which will match a similar amount from the national government," Mr Muiruri indicated.

The CECM who was accompanied by Trade Chief Officer Mr Samuel Ndegwa stated that the devolved unit bets that CAIPS and SEZs will help grow industrialization and incomes to provide quality life to all residents by 2030 in a clean and secure environment.

Mr Muiruri noted that the county administration was also collaborating with the Ministry of Investments, Trade and Industry (MITI) to start CAIPS in line with the bottom-up economic transformation agenda.
